Academic Jewish Studies Grant Programme: Post-Doctoral Fellowships

Deadline for submission: Monday 13 January 2025

Support is available for institutions who wish to employ a post-doctoral fellow in Jewish Studies. Institutions should be able to make a case that the post-doctoral fellow will make a significant contribution to their department and conduct ground-breaking research during their fellowship.

The fellowship programme includes online seminars and workshops designed to foster networking and collaboration between our fellows. These events include skills based workshops and opportunities to present work-in-progress. Recipients are expected to participate in these events throughout their fellowship.

Level and duration of support

Grants of up to £35,000 per annum are available for European institutions to employ a post-doctoral fellow for a two-year period. We are aware this is not enough to cover a full-time post-doctoral fellowship in some countries, and we expect universities to contribute to the cost of the fellowship. Institutions must ensure that all of the costs of the position (including social security, benefits, taxes, etc.) are considered before applying for the fellowship, and there must be a plan in place to cover all of these costs. Award amounts will vary according to the local salary scales, costs of living and individual needs.

The Foundation does not provide additional funding, on top of the original amount awarded, for research, travel, etc. To be covered, these expenses must be included in the original application budget.

Candidates researching and/or teaching any topic within the field of Jewish Studies will be considered eligible for funding. Successful applications will demonstrate the synergy between the hosting department and the proposed candidate. Post-doctoral fellows are encouraged to present their research to the local Jewish community as well as to the wider public. A department, centre, etc., may only put forward one post-doctoral application per round. Likewise, only one post-doctoral grant will be awarded per round to any given university. Therefore, if different university departments, centres, etc., submit post-doctoral applications at the same time, we will decide which one, if any, to select for a grant.

Eligibility Criteria

To be eligible to receive a Post-Doctoral Fellowship from the Foundation, the post-doctoral applicant must be based in Europe (either a European citizen or holder of a valid European residency permit) and the host institution must be based in Europe (both EU and non-EU states). We are not currently accepting applications from institutions in Belarus, Russia, and Ukraine.

Institutions must be able to demonstrate how the presence of a post-doctoral fellow will strengthen Jewish Studies at their institution. Post-doctoral candidates must either have received their doctoral degree no more than 7 years before the application deadline or intend to submit their doctoral dissertation by June 2025.

Individuals who have already received a post-doctoral fellowship from the Foundation may not apply for another one, even at a different host institution.

These fellowships are awarded based on the candidate's academic merit, though some consideration will also be given to the degree of geographic mobility demonstrated by the candidate, both in his/her current choice of institution and in his/her previous academic career.

Eligible Topics

All topics within the broad field of Jewish Studies are considered eligible for the Foundation's Jewish Studies grants. The Foundation particularly welcomes applications from those engaged in the study of contemporary Jewish life in Europe from a social science perspective and those whose proposals involve digital humanities research techniques.

In principle, projects only tangentially related to Jewish Studies are unlikely to be successful, nor will projects devoted to an individual or individuals who happen to be Jewish, but whose historical importance is not significantly contingent on that biographical fact. Secondary school education, informal education and documentary films will not be funded within the context of the Academic Jewish Studies grant programme.

For more information on Jewish Studies please read our FAQs.

Eligible Costs

In general, the full salary cost for employing a post-doctoral fellow as well as additional travel and research costs may be applied for within this grant category; however, institutional overheads will not be funded. Institutional overheads include the costs of grant administration, maintaining, heating, and insuring the building in which your department is housed, as well as the taxes your university pays for that building.

If you are uncertain about the eligibility of your proposed project or project costs, please contact Dr Ruchama Johnston-Bloom (r.johnston-bloom@rothschildfoundation.eu).

Open Access Policy

A fundamental component of the Rothschild Foundation Hanadiv Europe's mission is to increase access to European Jewish heritage and culture. To that end, the Foundation encourages grantees to publish their Foundation-funded research in peer-reviewed journals with an open access option, and to make their articles freely accessible whenever possible.

Grantees may apply to the Foundation for additional funding to cover costs associated with open access publication, such as article processing charges.
