Grant details

Eligible scholars may apply, via their institution, for up to £45,000 for a period between six to twelve months in order to focus on research and writing. The amount awarded is contingent on the demonstrated cost of employing a fixed-term replacement for the scholar and the duration of the proposed fellowship.

Note: If an application is successful, funding will be awarded to the scholar's institution to employ the replacement lecturer, etc., and disperse research funds to the scholar.

Eligibility

Eligibility criteria

Applicants must be employed at a European university or heritage institution (e.g., archive, library or museum), and we expect them to have already made a significant contribution to Jewish Studies. Typically, we expect applicants to be within 15 years of completing their PhD.

We suggest more junior applicants check to see whether they are eligible to apply for a post-doctoral fellowship instead.

Eligible topics

All topics within the broad field of Jewish Studies are considered eligible for the Foundation's Jewish Studies grants. The Foundation particularly welcomes applications from those engaged in the study of contemporary Jewish life in Europe from a social science perspective and those whose proposals involve digital humanities research techniques.

In principle, projects only tangentially related to Jewish Studies are unlikely to be successful, nor will projects devoted to an individual or individuals who happen to be Jewish, but whose historical importance is not significantly contingent on that biographical fact. Secondary school education, informal education and documentary films will not be funded within the context of the Academic Jewish Studies grant programme.

For more information on Jewish Studies please read our AJS FAQs.

Eligible costs

If the applicant is employed at a university, funding can go toward a teaching buyout. If the applicant is employed at a heritage institution, funding can go toward employing a fixed-term replacement. Up to £5,000 can also go toward research expenses.

If you are uncertain about the eligibility of your proposed project or project costs, please contact Dr Ruchama Johnston-Bloom.

Open Access policy

A fundamental component of the Rothschild Foundation Hanadiv Europe's mission is to increase access to European Jewish heritage and culture.

We encourage grantees to publish their Foundation-funded research in peer-reviewed journals with an open access option, and to make their articles freely accessible whenever possible. Should an article based on Foundation-funded research be accepted for publication, grantees may apply to the Foundation for funding to cover costs associated with open access publication, such as article processing charges.
